Allied Pixel Announces the Partners in Progress Award

MEDIA, PA (January 2010) - Allied Pixel has initiated an annual awards program that provides a $25,000 production grant to a greater Philadelphia-area non-profit. Called the Partners in Progress Award, the grant is for the production of a digital media project of the winner's choosing. This can include a website, a video production or an integrated application. Partners in Progress was created as a way for Allied Pixel to give back to the community. "We recognize the tremendous good being done by non-profits in our region, and want to support their work in a meaningful way," said Allied Pixel's Bill Haley. Allied Pixel is the program sponsor and performs production services for the winning project.

The 2009 Partners in Progress award recipient was the New Kensington Community Development Corporation. Allied Pixel donated their time and extensive expertise to assist the CDC in developing a new website with a mapping application that will highlight various green endeavors throughout the CDC's locality.

The program is open to 501(c)(3) non-profit and governmental agencies based in the 11-county greater Philadelphia region. This includes Bucks, Chester, Delaware, Montgomery and Philadelphia counties in Pennsylvania; Burlington, Camden, Gloucester, Mercer and Salem counties in New Jersey; and New Castle County in Delaware. National organizations with chapters based in the region are also eligible. Apply for the Partners in Progress Award any time between January 1 and March 31, 2009.
